General Comment

Unrestricted access and use of all Americans' personal and professional works is one of the most un-American ideas possible, and should not be permitted in a free and just society. Additionally, OpenAI has not shown themselves to be sufficiently innovative, transformative, or useful to be given the billions upon billions of dollars they have managed to shake from government and private interests, let alone such extreme rights above those that any ordinary citizen or business may enjoy. I would sooner see the government fund their own AI research and development independently than get further into bed with OpenAI
