General Comment

This is an obscene abuse of power that doesn't even try to hide the fact that it's specifically intended to protect Elon Musk and other tech investors from facing consequences from crimes the companies they've supported have already committed. As well as prop up a failing technology before those same people lose all the money they've invested. It's another simple and disgusting example of corporate welfare and legal exceptions for the wealthy hiding behind a xenophobic boogeyman of another country developing the same worthless technology.
