General Comment

The way rampant use of AI has been ruining the potential careers and passions of artists and other creatives is shameful. No person should ever have their creativity in a work environment stunted, nor should they have to worry about being harassed, doxxed, sent death threats and more that I've seen artists have to endure because of the way this has been operating and advancing over the last several years.

It has to be regulated so that people don't have to fear their careers falling apart or fear pursuing a career if they feel they can accomplish it just because they don't feel secure in the fact that any person could steal their work and upload it to a program.

It is shameful that this has even made it this far unregulated. You have made the lives and careers of many wonderfully creative people so much harder and uncertain because you did not step up to protect them, and now you're trying to make it even worse for these people. Absolutely shameful, and I hope for their sakes that you do not pass this plan.
