General Comment

Exempting companies breaking the law from the laws they break allows lawlessness. Our nation's laws were designed to protect individuals and small businesses from other individuals and businesses who wish to undercut or harm them in ways that are unjust or unnecessarily brutal.

Allowing AI companies to circumvent our copyright system, a system that exists to promote competition between America's companies, allows them to profit off of the works of small businesses while directly competing with them. This kills America's small businesses.

If the government attempts to go forward with this plan, all copyright holders must be reimbursed, by the government, on a consistent basis.
