General Comment

As an artist, the idea of my art or anyone else's work is being used to train AI is abhorrent and appalling. The consideration of it, even, is EXTREMELY disappointing. To even consider taking art, which people use their own soul and drive to create - whether it be painting, music, drawing, dance, anything - and putting it into a computer which makes a worse and meaningless product. Regardless of skill level, artists and musicians do not deserve to have their work stolen from them to be used by AI.

AI does not have the joy of human expression that comes from creating. AI does not understand why art sometimes looks a certain way. Why things sound the way they do. Why things matter. AI has NO soul. AI doesn't understand the process of creating, of learning a skill, of applying that knowledge to what you do. It just does - which is why AI creating things from music, prose, art, anything, is meaningless. Soulless. An abomination of all things that make art, art.

Even considering to use AI to replace humanity shows what you lack: humanity.
