General Comment

Hello,

I am writing this comment in regards to the AI Action Plan. I do not believe AI holds a place in the future of the US. Though there are results some may see as beneficial, I believe that they serve in the short-term. This plan would cause harm in the long-term by setting a precedent that theft is an acceptable action and would blur the line of the validity of content shared on social media. And not just for media & resources, but for individuals as well. AI steals from my livelihood as an American and profits off of theft. Art & stories are personal ventures created by artists & writers. How can AI take that and twist it into something it's not supposed to be, especially without my permission? It devalues the American spirit & lowers the morale of creative individuals. Instead of celebrating the individual's ability to create worlds & expand boundaries, AI serves only one purpose: to steal & regurgitate content, robbing us of our cultural image & making us look hollow & vapid. Lastly, AI is overhyped and is fleecing the eyes of the American public. I believe this is a fad: a trend that will come & go. Though it may leave, its disdain from the American public will last longer. Moving forward with this would leave a lingering contempt, even if it's long gone. And where would that disdain from the constituents go towards? In conclusion, please reconsider not moving forward with this plan. Not just for the American creatives, but for how the world will see you.

Thank you.
