General Comment

For the sake of intellectual property laws and the dignity of all artists everywhere, it is a disgrace to the American people to pass any sort of laws or potential precedent that would allow anyone to illegally steal whatever they want for AI. It's entirely against what makes America great. You're spitting in the face of millions of Americans who make a living producing art, whether that be drawings, writings, or anything else that these billion dollar companies will steal to enhance their products. You should all be ashamed to give these vial organizations the ability to freely steal whatever they want. We cannot and should not let these organizations get away with whatever they want. We have laws for a reason. People are supposed to be able to make a living off of whatever they make. This is theft. AI is theft. If these companies can't survive without stealing from others, then these organizations should not exist. Period.
