General Comment

Allowing AI companies to freely steal the creative output of artists to train their tech is deeply exploitative, destructive to the creative industry and the human spirit, and moreover it's completely antithetical to the norms of copyright law that protect creators. It'd be unbelievable that for years people's lives could be financially destroyed for downloading a movie illegally, but that as a country we are even having a conversation around whether or not AI companies should be allowed to steal millions of works from thousands of creators. This is deeply unethical hypocrisy and it needs to stop!
