General Comment

AI does not have a place in the United States' future. Corporations are asking for this to go through only so they can profit from the people they would be stealing from. OpenAI saying this is a national security measure is their attempt at fearmongering. AI has a negative reputation that is only growing given its presence in ads is enough to tell people the product is not worth using, buying, and so on. If the current administration wishes to fight for the American citizens that they represent, they will not give OpenAI and any other AI companies immunity to lawsuits involving copyright infringement.
