General Comment

As a visual artist and as an arts educator I am terrified of a future that allows the strip mining of our entire cultural heritage for the sole financial benefit of a tech oligarchy. A skilled creative is facing the prospect of being usurped by a technological doppelganger of a skilled creative, an app which was trained using the work, data, and intellectual property of other skilled creatives entirely without their consent or compensation. This is the moral equivalent of the most brutal colonization. A cowardly and depraved from skilled, productive, working people to the elites. Our society will be all the more poorer, financially, aesthetically and morally if this goes forward.
