General Comment

The notion that AI should not be bound by copyright laws the same way that I, a real person made of flesh, am is nothing short of insulting. If allowed to run rampant it will not only fill our culture with endless slop made by an unfeeling machine with no soul but it will also harm our hardworking artists. American art is one of the many positives that our country has to offer and to strip that away in favor of Machine generated fever dreams would be nothing short of foolish.
