General Comment

The so-called "Generative AI" boom is a scam to fleece businesses, private citizens, and the government of both investment capital and data that can then be used to enrich the people pushing it at the expense of everyone else. Aside from the data scraping it is largely driven by glorified autocomplete algorithms and underpaid human labor (to "edit" the garbled and hallucinated output into a legible form) rather than any genuine intelligence, and it cannot be allowed free reign over our nation's economy and culture. I do not believe this falsely-advertised and harmful technology holds any place in the future of this country, except possibly an enormous embarrassment to look back on if this plan is put into effect.
