General Comment

It's been said before by others, but this is a succinct summary:
AI does not hold a place in the future of the US.
AI steals from our livelihoods as American creators and profits off of theft.
AI is overhyped and is fleecing the resources of the American public.
AI is a waste of energy, physically and emotionally.
AI devalues the legacy of inventiveness associated with Americans. Note I have to think on using "past legacy" to make the point how this is poised to no longer be the case.
AI promotes professional inaccuracy and lack of accountability and responsibility. If you think that that's a benefit, you need to ponder your own uselessness.
