General Comment

The use of AI technology as it currently exist is nothing short of poor quality and craftsmanship. AI programs routinely steal from artist and writers in order to “create” their content. What they create is not original, and if left unchecked like is currently being proposed, it will lead to the utter destruction and desecration of genuine works of art by creators. Art is not a commodity and it is not some thing that can be turned out on an industrial scale, like what AI technology does. It is something that takes real hard work, dedication, and passion that comes from the human spirit and imagination. AI technology should not be allowed to be able to run amok and rampant unchecked supervision.
