General Comment

AI does not have a place in the future of American creative or intellectual life. Its ability to produce is based on stealing the work of others, regardless of copyright status, and its owners are not interested in paying for the work their software relies on to exist. Not to mention the environmental and electrical resources that are used to produce shoddy work filled with hallucinated data. AI is a scam against the user, for real artists and writers, and for the American public in general
