General Comment

Absurd. Why should these private companies get to steal whatever they want? Ingenuity of the American people cannot be rewarded by theft. It makes no sense that a company can steal copyrighted works because of "AI"--these are active choices that we, the people, should be able to make. It's insulting enough that AI barely adds anything to my life already; knowing that it can take copyrighted items for free and use them for its own profit, when I would not be allowed to use a 30-second clip of music in a video, feels outrageous. Shouldn't AI be subject to all the rules and limitations that a human creator would?
