General Comment

As a self-published author, I can think of now reason why authors and other content creators should not own and control their own creations. Any benefit from my work should accrue to me or my chosen partners, not to AI. Indeed, it not the case that AI has been shown to be benefit the common weal, and I have no reason to expect that this will benefit anyone besides the owners of the AI platforms.

Like the Communist regimes that expropriated property for the state, this is a lawless expropriation that will aggrandize powerful interests at the expense of the public.
