General Comment

Generative AI is a dead end it is culturally a dead end and it is economically a dead end. There is no advantage in using it, never mind that the only way it claims to be able to sustain itself is to be allowed around laws to illegally access material protected under copyright. AI generated material, cannot create. They do not, form something original, or of worth. No one likes it. The public roundly rejects engaging with it or products that use it. It is a poison pill for any company's product to hear that it used generative AI. There is no gain in allowing it to run wild. If it was of any value, it could sustain itself. And it cannot, which is why it is begging to be allowed to break Copyright Law. Let it die.
