General Comment

I work as a freelance illustrator. In the modern market the only way to spread my brand and find work is by making a large collection of this work available only for public viewing. AI is quite literally stealing my intellectual property and using it to enrich a company by feeding it to their AI algorithm so that it can produce work which will in many cases replace mine. This is also true for many other artists.

AI cannot think. It is not producing creatively distinct work from the creators it steals from. On occasion AI is even known to produce work that features immense likeness or even the signature of certain artists' work.

Allowing OpenAI to utilize the works of artists, writers, and casual internet content creators everywhere is an affront to anyone who has ever given their heart and soul to the world expecting nothing in return. It is a slap in the face to the charitable individuals who saw fit to make our days a little brighter by offering their genuine and uniquely human works, perverting and twisting these works by feeding them to a machine that will warp and regurgitate these works for the profit of a corporation who will not reimburse or benefit those humans in any way. Please do not let companies win out over humanity.
