General Comment

AI tools are generally a massive waste of power and resources. They are inefficient, often riddled with lies and falsified information, and public facing tools like LLMs and 'art' programs actively steal from public human works to function. These tools have no material value and actively diminish the human practice and experience in areas where these programs are applied often.

AI companies are seeking to have all regulation removed so they can actively scrape and steal for their own benefit, NOT the American peoples. Only corporations benefit here and all others are actively harmed, especially artists, writers, and those that produce creative works in the public eye.
