General Comment

OpenAI should not have access to immunity to any lawsuits pertaining to copyrighted material and AI in all does not hold a place in the United States government. Allowing OpenAI to be immune to copyright infringement lawsuits would open the floodgates for all other AI companies to essentially steal jobs from people and artists on an even higher level than already present, with countless peoples livelihoods being harmed in the process. People will get laid off, people will be fired from their jobs, and people will be replaced by a soulless machine and companies will attempt to profit off of that fact. OpenAI should have no involvement with the government and should never have any immunity to lawsuits that come their way due to their LLM stealing peoples work and bastardizing it for a profit.
