General Comment

Allowing gen-ai specifically to have unrestricted access to images is a poor idea. Many digital artists already struggle with people using various gen ai systems to create art in their distinct style without their consent. This might not matter to those who only care about making money, but keep in mind that because of this, systems are being designed to deliberately sabotage gen ai in contrast. Regardless of this being a financial or creative issue, there will be heavy backlash if this is carried out. Art should remain a human expression.
