General Comment

To those it concerns,

I am a US citizen and a 33 year old professional writer. Frankly, I am appalled that this is even a discussion we are having, and yet here I am taking the time out of my day to write a comment to voice my strong opposition to any grace given to OpenAI. I am firmly and fully against OpenAI having immunity, protection, or any sort of special treatment regarding copyright violation. Their current activities amount to theft of intellectual properties owned by real artists, writers, and other IPs. If the government empowers OpenAI to steal further data with this proposed resolution and action by Sam Alton and his company; then there will be no protection for -any- works of art, written or otherwise.

Like other defining periods throughout our history, this too stands as a pivotal moment where we as a society need to take a firm and defiant stance and tell these big AI companies no more. No more theft. Copyrights matter. They cannot and should not be allowed to steal content en masse or at all.

It is my hope that whomever reads this finds this comment and takes it to heart; that it be known that I, as a US tax paying, law abiding citizen, am firmly and fully opposed to OpenAI and their continued banditry of the internet come to a complete and total end. Regulate them and stop it.

Thank you for your time,
Kris Roldan
