General Comment

I do not believe Artificial Intelligence holds a profitable or productive place in the future of the United States of America. AI steals from the livelihood of hard-working Americans and profits off the theft of real, human production. The unrealized hype and hope of AI is blinding the American public to the real-world risks and harms the technology causes, such as disproportionate competition for resources that people need for their homes, businesses, and communities. AI is a speculative market with false promises to fool the public; it's a speculative bubble waiting to pop, and the concerns with data security risk the integrity of the information we access and rely on every day. We can do better with our own minds, our own hands, our ingenuity, and our industriousness, controlling technology ourselves.
