General Comment

No AI system is granted the rights to any copywritten content. Using someone else's content for profit is theft - if this holds true for corporations against individuals (as -they- often get to dictate!), then it MUST hold true in reverse with no exceptions. Corporations and the federal government cannot use others' content without rights as that is theft.

Because all AI systems are trained on content, unless rights are given, those AI systems are theft. A federal department for AI should not exist under these circumstances as it would be unlawful.

Moreover, large AI systems consume too many resources and can only interpret what they are given - there are better and more accurate uses for our national resources.

As a citizen of this nation, I hereby demand that this AI initiative be cancelled and dismissed with no further action and development.
