General Comment

OpenAI should be subject to exactly the same copyright restrictions as any other company. If their tech can only work by being trained on IP owned by others, they need to work out licensing agreements and pay for that IP.

I would like to see OpenAI restricted from simply scraping content online and sorting it out later. It seems absurd that they should get a pass when a YouTuber posting game criticism can have their videos removed for copyright infringement.

The government should be doing far more to regulate and restrict AI, not clear the way for them. If they want our content, they can pay.
