General Comment

If humans can't steal from each other without breaking the laws created by God and our forefathers, then why does something created by humans to be in the service is humans get a free pass to violate humanity just because it isn't alive by the definition of science? That's going right down Terminator Boulevard all you big tech aficionado. Pretty soon human life will be stolen for the benefit of AI, and not hyperbole, not in the form of jobs and livelihoods cuz big corp wants to save money with big tech that is still in digital diapers despite talking big. Respect humanity. Moreso than at present. AI is human made and thus not exempt from human law. No stealing. Thou shalt not steal.
