General Comment

Proponents of generative "AI" technology are simply con men trying to steal what they could not make themselves. Though I have little hope that the government of the United States cares much for the rights of individual artists, I think it would be wise to remember that this would affect media corporations as well. Do you really want to be sued by Disney because OpenAI wants to train on its intellectual property for free?

Also, do you remember NFTs? They were supposed to be the next big thing, everyone was pushing them, they had Super Bowl commercials, they had apes (bored), they were going to be THE FUTURE. And then the bubble burst. The same thing will happen with generative "AI". Do you really want to be the one holding the bag when it does?

As an artist, I find generative "AI" morally and intellectually reprehensible. As a human being, I find it incredibly stupid and I think anyone who thinks this particular bubble will last much longer is incredibly naive.
