General Comment

I absolutely refuse to allow self-serving technology companies to copy and mass reproduce my artwork, even if they try and justify it by running it through an AI "filter" first. I have already seen many popular artists have their works stolen and recreated and nauseum via AI tools, and this causes both financial harm and stress to the original creators. We'll be selling out brilliant minds and undercutting the drive of writers, artists, engineers, scientists, creators of all kinds - who wants to create new things when it'll just get stolen by the rich CEO of some tech company?
