General Comment

It's anti-artist, anti-creator, and straight up anti-American to gut copyright law to benefit a handful of companies. If this data is worth something to them, it's worth paying for. Anything less than that is condoning stealing. Even the government can't take property for public good for free--if they do eminent domain, they have to pay a fair price. This is ridiculous and it's insulting that they even feel emboldened to ask for it.
