General Comment

Benefiting and profiting off others' intellectual property without any form of permission or compensation is a form of theft, one that will severely hurt the livelihood of countless americans. It is unacceptable for the US government to allow companies to steal other's property, all in the name of furthering a technology that will in no way offset the damage done to those affected by such theft. This Plan betrays the principles this nation was built upon, and it threatens the stability of its economy, its international reputation and the lives of its people.
