General Comment

While I personally am not a digital artist, I understand how important art is. How long it takes to do, and how important of a profession it is. From simply taking art commissions on the side, to art being used in video games, TV shows, and movies. It takes a lot for stuff to be made and that should be shown off and appreciated. With the rampant use of AI these days, not only is the creative aspect going away but the need to use other peoples work is terrible. its a weird gray area to use generative AI for dumb memes and just for curiosity but to actively use it for companies personal gain WITHOUT the consent of the artist they are stealing from is not okay.

Companies can't properly train their AI without STEALING other peoples work to feed the AI. and it should STAY that way.
