General Comment

If this product cannot exist by stealing work from others, then it doesn't need to exist. If a bank said that they couldn't exist without robbing people, the government wouldn't (and shouldn't) step in to change the law for them to function. The Free Market is speaking when we say that we don't want Generative AI and it's not worth the cost (to the environment and the livelihoods it steals from to function). Let them fail.
