General Comment

AI companies use typical tech bro swagger to sell investors on their sleazy product and now it has to be everyone else's problem. If there is any belief whatsoever in intellectual property, these professional thieves cannot be allowed to continue.

In the likely event the United States shores the wrong thing anyway, it will be one more reason not to believe American propaganda that China isn't doing significantly better than us. We are told constantly that China is evil because they don't respect copyright law, but it turns the government's only problem with that was their ethnicity.

Leave AI to rot, or hasten your inevitable demise. Those are the options.
