General Comment

Developing AI in its current form requires "training" it on already created literature. This material is copyrighted, and the authors and rights holders have NOT BEEN ASKED FOR THAT PERMISSION. AI in its current form neither asks copyright holders for permission nor recompenses them. THIS IS THEFT OF INTELLECTUAL PROPERTY AND MUST BE PROHIBITED.

Furthermore, AI in its current form has not shown a large-scale utility or profitability. Allowing its developers to violate copyright amounts to large-scale damage to America's powerful IP environment without any corresponding reward.
