General Comment

Generative AI input/predictions have no use in our human society. It does not solve problems to fix everyday problems, and the everyday American is sick of having it ham-fisted into every "smart" product they own between iPhone and Microsoft Office. Adopting a natural president on funding Generative AI programs does not have a future in corporate America besides stealing art without permission from everyday artists, be it musical or physical or even artistic, and using those stolen works to create something that doesn't understand the very work it's copying from. This is not a technology worth investing in as long as it regurgitates other people's ideas as it's own.
