General Comment

The requirements are not unnecessary. What is necessary is protecting copyright and small businesses/artists from rampant misuse of AI, especially when their datasets feed off copyrighted work without the creators' permission. AI should not be considered fair use! The private sector is harmed much more than it is ever helped by AI "innovation" that feeds off others' hard work and is so often used to create fake and misleading "work." I oppose AI. But sadly, I think we are past that point. What can should focus on is establishing and enforcing strictly rules to try to make AI use more transparent, both in what data it uses in its datasets and to clearly label when it is used so it is not deceptive. It should be very clear, not deceptive. And it should not be allowed to take from creators.
