General Comment

I am the owner and creator of dozens of copyrighted works. Why should a private company be allowed to steal my work for their own use without my permission and fair compensation to me? Moreso, these companies intend to act in direct competition to me, using my works and that of other authors as a training tool to create competing works at a rate orders of magnitude higher than I could ever create something. If I were to copy someone's work and attempt to profit from it, I would rightfully be sued and even arrested. Why should we allow AI companies to do so at a massive scale?
