General Comment

To allow AI to train off copyrighted works for free sets a dangerous precedent in which others are then able to profit off of or monetize a private IP. Unless AI is barred from making any profit, there is no way to preserve intellectual properties and copyright while allowing AI to train on them without permission.

If a musician must give credits to their use of a sample and pay royalties out to that person, then AI must pay royalties out to the people whose works it trains off of. AI would not exist without those works. Thus, the people who contribute should be fairly compensated.

Thank you.
