General Comment

This is a terrible idea that must not be allowed to pass. It would legalize the continual theft of the works of millions of artists, to feed systems that only serve to imperil or replace human jobs and destroy the concept of creativity. The AI industry, as it is, is also the latest toy of Silicon Valley which they force upon everyone despite nobody wanting it, and which the the forces of capital must be boosted so that they reap the financial benefits. You want to improve government efficiency? Why not tell Sam Altman and his friends that they can't just hook themselves up to the government spigot and demand a trillion dollars for something that if they actually tried to innovate on, would only cost minuscule fraction of their asking price.
