General Comment

I stand against AI. It steals the hardwork of American creators, refusing to give anything back from those they take from. These people put love, care, and hardwork into the things they create, will you really allow some program to steal all of that for a quick buck? What happens when an artists own work or style becomes copyrighted and stolen from them? What about our writers who take months and years to create a novel only to have their work used and stolen without any way to stop it? Where will we draw the line? When it steals our very voices and puts a copyright symbol on them?

Please stand against this. AI has no place to have any power over those they take from.
