General Comment

I do not believe that allowing this plan to pass is even remotely a good idea. As much as it has been promised to "be the future," it has done nothing but spit out soulless amalgamations of all the art it's stolen, and give the wrong answer time and time again on the front page of the biggest browser in the world. Allowing AI to run rampant without consequence will only make these concerns and downsides more prevalent around the globe, it will strip artists of their rights while placing heavy restrictions on what the public is allowed to see. If AI is not held under extreme scrutiny for the massive copyright infringement it provokes daily, the world as we know it will fall into dystopia.

Do not allow AI to develop any further than it has. It is a tumor on the internet growing rapidly out of control, and if it's not removed soon, it will have catastrophic consequences on the world, on the planet, on history, and for the rights of everyone.
