General Comment

As an artist and write, part of my livelihood is at risk due to AI generation. Thousands of others who bled and sweat and shed tears for their craft, whether working independently or part of a greater creative industry, will lose employment opportunities. AI generated works are not the results of tools wielded by the creative human spirit, but by a soulless construct that steals from the labor of others and mashes it together into an uninspired and unrequired waste of data processing. Images, writing and music generated by these programs should not be protected by copyright. Not now, not ever.
