General Comment

"AI" as currently conceived of is absolutely theft on a tremendous scale.

A simple rule should be introduced: "If it is not explicitly public-domain work, it should not be free for AI to be trained on, and consent must be obtained for each individual thing." Period.

Or, is it cool if I walk into your house, steal your TV, and walk out because, hey, I wanted to watch it and you happened to have one? I mean, that's basically what this AI stuff is doing to creatives of all categories, from music on down.
