General Comment

Disclaimer: I do not speak on behalf of any employer.

I have spent my decade long career, in open source and the Python language, leading and serving on open source foundation boards and meeting the community of experts building AI products.

AI is a force-multiplier for anything it is charged with and within the limits of the system with which it interfaces. Sourcing data is absolutely a limit of any system especially AI models. GOOD data, is not only "accurate" but also ethically sourced. This sets a precedence that has already been litigated! The reason we have IRB and research review because data collection for science requires consent and ethical review -- not forking over in homes of some nebulous unnamed "progress".

I have not consented to being part of any of OpenAIs modeling, which is a research method TURNED CONSUMER PRODUCT. All terms of services that have not explicitly mentioned AI should not assume permission!!

I deserve to be able to consent!! This threatens assumed privacy. I make calculations on risk and when in public I have less assumed privacy than in my home and online, but it is a scale. You cannot share it wide without my consent.

We have a movement coming. While other countries are discussing modern scenarios global state of technology, the US not only refuses to invest the time but sell us off to the *FIRST* BID. Then citizen's data is picked dry by idiot technocrats. Your children's data is on the line just like mine. There is no protecting your family from this.
