General Comment

I think the United States is operating recklessly in regards to AI use. If AI steals from the government, will there be anything done to restrict it? And before that, will there be anything done to stop scrapping of ostensibly private data such as medical records, identifying information, etc.? Already there is nothing stopping private companies from collecting identifying data on their customers, and worse, nothing to stop them selling that data. If this plan goes forward, privacy in the United States will be long dead. It's an insult to the American public to put the interests of a few private companies before the personal security of individual citizens.

Do Not go through with this plan - protect the remaining privacy of American citizens.
