General Comment

I'd really rather not have the future generations of American children have their ability to think surrendered to the whims of greedy tech bro assholes and their toys. If Open AI can't survive without unlimited access to the same copy-written material that was jealously guarded for decades by corporations, then they don't deserve to exist. Everyone else has to worry about being sued by these mega corporations, but these tech bros don't? Sorry, they don't get that privilege.
