General Comment

AI does not have a place in the growth of America. It steals data from those who have compiled or created it themselves, and regurgitates it in a horribly put together manner.

When it comes to media, AI actively harms and steals from individuals who have put time, money, resources, and skills into the things that they have marketed and created, therefore risking pulling thousands of jobs from the people.

AI also poses huge safety concerns, both by the security of the data collected and the well being of the people using it. If you poke around on Google AI summaries enough, you'll find that it will make suggestions that could be potentially life threatening.

AI is a fleeting ideal that has no place in the grander scheme of America. It will only lead to making things worse.
