General Comment

It is imperative for America's future that we do not allow so-called "AI" to encroach upon the cultural creative power that makes America such a rich nation. To endorse or even so much as indulge this technology is to engage in theft of the highest order from America's own citizens, to steal from our own coffers to chase a fleeting bubble. The AI bubble is already close to bursting, and if we allow it to grow further, it will be all the more devastating when it finally pops. The push from AI companies to access copyrighted materials is a desperate, last-ditch effort to wring a few more dollars out of the stock price before they cash out. They are making fools out of you and lining their pockets. This is the dot-com crash, but potentially even more dangerous and significantly more malicious.

Do the right thing. Shut it down now.
