General Comment

OpenAI is asking for it to be legal for them to steal whatever they want. If private citizens can be fined for downloading movies, TV shows, books, or games without paying for it then OpenAI should be fined for all of the mass copyright theft they've done. This is an openly kleptocratic bill that if it passes will make the current administration complicit in theft on a scale never before seen in history. Any serious person would strike this down as overtly unconstitutional and as being something that steals from people and corporations without compensating them.
